Solution of Age-Old Social and Political Problems in China Rests in Hands of Youth In Both Hemispheres, According to Oakes

By LOUISE MORRISON

Something must be done within the next year or two to convince the Orientals that democracy is not just for white people, said Vanya Oakes, foreign correspondent, author, and lecturer, at convocation yesterday.

The Chinese are asking the questions—Have the Negroes been given equal rights? What is the true meaning of democracy? Does America practice this meaning? What is the difference between the American capitalistic form of government and imperialism?

"Their chief concern at the present is obtaining enough rice to survive, but within the next year or two they will demand an answer to these and similar questions which Americans must be prepared to answer if they want China to develop into a democratic nation," asserted Miss Oakes.

There will be a conflict between us and the already Orientalized Russia as to whether China will be democratic or socialist. In many ways socialism may be more appealing so America must be prepared to defend its policies with actual situations as proof of democracy's supremacy, she continued.

"The conduct of GI's in the Far East and the attitude of American capitalistic businessmen have already chalked up two black marks against us. We also have a national fault in that we think we are always right and the other fellow is wrong, but other people don't look at things that way," related the correspondent.

Sun Fo, the young man who personally wrote most of the constitution which was adopted a few months ago by the present government, is the leader of a liberalist group in China. Miss Oakes said that his name is one to be remembered because he will play an important part in the administrative power that will be put into force in the future.

Are Americans showing democracy to China at its face value or are they leaving a false impression?
(please see page four)

By DOROTHY MCKENZIE

"China's younger group will eventually emerge as its leaders," said Vanya Oakes in her talk before guests at the Theta Sigma Phi Matrix Honor Table Sunday night in the Florentine Gardens.

During her ten years as a foreign correspondent in the Far East, Miss Oakes had the opportunity to watch conflict develop within Oriental families as the younger generation became more nation conscious.

The young Chinese are very interested in education. During the war, students walked two thousand miles to attend classes, sometimes even being forced to build their own barracks for classrooms, she said.

"The Chinese are very literal. Unless we can make Democracy work in America in settling our racial problems, we can't convince Orientals that democracy is any more than a bunch of high sounding words," asserted Miss Oakes.

"The elder of the family stood for all that was ancient China. He believed everything should be done for the good of the family," said Miss Oakes.

Pat Nelson, Missoula, Theta Sigma Phi president, introduced Mrs. Louise Denny, editor of the Theta Sig quarterly magazine, The Matrix. Alice Finstad, Bottineau, N. D.; Ellen Mouat, Myers; and Joan Kuka, Havre, were pledged into the journalism honorary. Eileen Roy, Anaconda, was awarded the annual Theta Sig scholarship to the outstanding sophomore woman in the journalism school.

The Theta Sigma Phi award of honor was won by Mrs. Mary Brennan Clapp, state poet laureate of Montana and an instructor in the English department, for outstanding contribution in the field of education.

Montana Study To Present Three Projects

By WALLACE G. DONKER

A variety of programs, including a festival, pageants, and drama, will be presented this summer by Montana community study groups, according to Ruth W. Robinson, acting director of the Montana Study.

The Stevensville group will present their second annual pageant July 19 and 20. The theme of this year's project will be the relationship between the Indians and whites in the Bitterroot valley from 1831 to 1891.

A community festival will be held by the Lewistown group May 31. This project will feature community drama, Montana country dancing, and an arts and crafts exhibit. Organizations working with the Lewistown study group include the American Association of University Women, Ubet Central Montana Pioneer society, and the Agriculture Extension service. Frank H. Smith, associate in field work, Montana Study, is in charge of the activities.

Under the auspices of the Montana Study, the full-blooded Indians of the Flathead reservation will present an historical pageant at Post Creek July 4 and 5, depicting one hundred years of life on the reservation.

Frosh Will Paint 'M' Thursday

Freshmen will be excused from classes Thursday afternoon to participate in the traditional "Green day" painting of the M. "Green day" tags are on sale today and tomorrow for ten cents to cover the cost of food, Chairman Dave Freeman, Missoula, announced.

Bear Paw and Spur points will be awarded to those taking part, Freeman said.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the day includes Royal Johnson, Butte; Adam Venettili, Newark, New Jersey; Gene Roberts, Glendive; Rukin Jelks, Greenough; Lex Mudd, Missoula; Catherine Hennessy, Conrad, and Carol Fraser, Billings.

Quintet Will Play Thursday

The newly-organized University Chamber Orchestra and quintet, directed by Arthur T. Meyer, will make their first public appearance Thursday, May 1, at 8:15 p.m. in the Student Union auditorium.

The program, spanning three centuries of music, will feature numbers by 18th, 19th, and 20th century composers.

The 15-member orchestra and quintet were organized this year to present some of the large quantities of music written especially for string orchestras. Since much music has been written for a string and wind orchestra, previously not utilized at MSU, plans are being made to add a few wind players to the groups.

WAR REP. TO TALK

All interested students will hear a War department representative speak tomorrow at 10 a.m. in Main 204 on the integration of former reserve officers into the regular army. The purpose and organization of the ROTC will also be explained by the speaker, Col. Jay B. Lovless announced.

"But Margie—how can you break a date when you've been doing my laundry for five weeks?"

Laundry, Dry Cleaning Strike Settled After Five-Week Tie-up

BY DOROTHY MCKENZIE

After a five-week tie-up of all Missoula laundry and dry cleaning establishments, settlement was reached 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon at a special union meeting.

"Local No. 21 voted to accept a 10 cents an hour increase in all departments," said Sam Rivin, secretary of the Trades and Labor Council.

Other settlement terms give a two-week vacation with pay to all employees who have worked longer than five years. All employers working from one to five years will have a one-week vacation with pay, he said.

"We're glad to be back at work. The workers are glad to be back too," said John Lindfay, of the Fashion Club Cleaners. "Service will be going full force by the end of the week."

The contract between the employers and the union expired Jan. 1. Union leaders felt that they were getting paid on one of the lowest scales in the state. Laundry workers were getting from top wages of 85 cents per hour down to the apprentice wage of 40 cents per hour. Dry cleaning workers were getting from 87 cents at the top to 65 cents an hour for apprentices. Supervisors were getting as high as $1.05 per hour.

"During the strike we were forced to send the dorm laundry to Hamilton, Polson, and Deer Lodge," said Mrs. Monica B. Swearingen, director of residence halls. Transportation was expensive, and often the small laundries in those towns were unable to accommodate such large loads, she said.

"We are certainly glad that the strike settlement has come, and that we will be able to count on Missoula laundries soon," added Mrs. Swearingen.

Many tenants of the trailer houses and the pre-fabs toiled over old-fashioned washtubs, boiling clothes and scrubbing by hand on rough washboards.

Veterans, many of whom had sworn off the washing detail forever, were forced to utilize their scrubbing technique again.

Smoking Taboo Outmoded

Early School Administration Condemned Campus Smoking, Openly Termed Male Offenders as 'Cads'

BY EILEEN ROY

"No see, no say, no hear."

Like the virtuous monkeys, the school administration, prior to 1913, absolutely condemned smoking on the campus. Although there was no written law, professors and students alike left their cigars or cigarettes on an old iron enclosure at the entrances to the oval.

The taboo originated at the time the campus was founded and an early Kaimin termed all men who dared to smoke openly as cads.

Recognizing that the evil weed was here to stay, a ruling was passed whereby men could smoke behind the buildings, but not in front—sin not being sin unless it is seen. Not until the return of veterans from the first World war were men allowed to smoke wherever they pleased.

Women then were more genteel and it was not until 1928 that any female became so innoculated with the habit as to insist on her natural rights. Smoking was at first absolutely forbidden in residence halls and sorority houses, co-eds being forced to go off campus for their after-dinner pleasures. The number of offenders increased until 1931 when the restrictions were removed.

This is only one of many defunct college traditions, very much enforced in the days when pa was courtin' ma, but thankfully hidden far away in the annals of MSU.

Campus Views

By MARTIN HEERWALD

Some day it may be possible for one lone man in a solitary hideout to amass enough nuclear power to commit mass suicide for the entire world.

The qualifications for such a man are that he be a genius, that he work in secrecy, and that he be convinced that the world is one big, hopeless mess. He would also believe that it's impossible to solve existing problems in the world, but that he could rid the world of such problems by ridding the world of itself. A lot of people believe in such a way today. Some of them may be geniuses.

We aren't asking for applications for the above job, nor are we trying to see how much cynicism and morbidness we can gather per square inch. Rather it's my belief that something is needed to shock this campus, and other campuses, out of a post-war lethargy.

It's high time we stepped out on the balconies of our ivory towers and took a glimpse of the world today. We need to get out of the drawing rooms and into the world. The difficulty is that one good look at reality, with its jungle of complications, is enough to put us into a circle of wishful thinking, or complete unthinking. Thinking is in the first place distasteful and distracting. In the second place, beneath the shallow surface of bare consciousness, it is frightening.

But we've got to start thinking, we've got to ask ourselves questions, then find the answers. We ought to first ask ourselves what we're getting out of this rat race called education. When we get that sheepskin, which is too often identified with wisdom itself, how much will we know beyond the limited specialty we've studied?

The trouble with too many schools is that they teach students to do things. They may know all about quantitative analysis, accounting, electronics, or any other specialty, but they do not know enough about life. No one of us can ever know enough about life. But there's a lot of room for progress in that empty reservoir bounded by what we do know and what we can know.

Many of the solutions to world problems have been for centuries right in the laps of the schools. The solutions are still resting there today. A golden opportunity to prepare students for life as well as jobs presents itself everyday, and once each day it is refused.

Who is to blame? We all are. Each and every one of us, the schools, the governments, faculty, and student body.

Too early in our lives emphasis was placed more upon compe-tation in learning than learning itself. The desire to learn was largely supplanted by the compulsion to learn. Abstractions such as A, B, and C were identified with gray matter. From the first grade classroom to the college room, learning has been measured in terms of competitive spirit.

In schools of higher education, the departments keep their students so busy trying to learn everything about one specialty that they have too little time for world affairs. Unless a student is directly connected with study which deals with current events, he is not equipped for intelligent living.

We will have to take time out from our specialties to look at the broader scope of life. Yet we are living in a world which becomes more specialized every day. Some day there will be so many specialties that the journalistic gripe boys won't know enough about anything to gripe about it.

But we can still maintain a good amount of general education, and we'll have to maintain it unless we want complete confusion.

In the meantime, at every tick-tock of your watch, that man in his solitary hideout is working. We've got to solve our problems before he does.

Butte Will Always be Butte . . . GUEST EDITORIAL

The mayor of Butte was tried for permitting gambling in the city. He was found not guilty. Who ever heard of gambling in Butte? That sanctimonious city would never sanction gambling.

The chief of police of Butte was tried before a civil service commission for refusing to stop rioting in Butte. He was found not guilty. Although private homes were wrecked and two people killed there was no rioting in Butte. That calm and peaceful city could not have a riot.

And thus Hitlers are born and thus they thrive.

Some day the bill must be paid.

You cannot forever insult intelligence.

Grizzly Batters Hit Often To Rout Miners, 17-2

Grizzly baseballers jumped the gun by 21 hours Friday evening when they made the Montana Mines contest look like Saturday's track meet. Before darkness and the last of the seventh caught up with them the Grizzlies scored 17 runs on 16 hits and 9 walks.

Jim Lucas gave five hits in as many innings and kept the Miner's attack well throttled except for the fifth when they scored their only two runs. Bob Helling worked the last two innings and gave up one hit and a walk.

Roy Malcolm and Darrell Wardien led the Montana attack with three hits each. Cope, Welch, Nicol, and Lucas gathered two each.

It was one of those afternoons when everything went right for the home club and everything wrong for the visitors. The Grizzlies worked well in the field while the Miners were committing every blunder known to the game and probably a few new ones.

The Butte batters spent a fruitless afternoon trying to solve the slants of Lucas and Helling. On the other hand, when a Mines pitcher occasionally did find the center of the plate, more often than not he was greeted by a solid Grizzly blow.

More MSU players hit safely and crossed home plate in this one game than in all six previous games.

"Bug-Buster" Dr. Gordon B. Castle set the stage for what was to come when during pre-game ceremonies he slammed Pres. "Lefty Jim" McCain's best Sunday pitch far out into right field. Coach Doug Fessenden wore the big mitt and mask, but it turned out to be a useless bit of equipment as President McCain failed to get one by Dr. Castle.

Foresters-Jumbo Beat ATO, PSK

Jumbo hall and the Foresters defeated the Phi Sigs and ATO, 14 to 4 and 18 to 3, respectively, last night in games played at the Clover bowl.

Jumbo hall knocked five home runs and the ATO's one during their one-sided game which Jumbo led all the way. Ralph O'Quinn pitched for Jumbo and Gene Eichler caught. For Alpha Tau Omega it was Halowell on the mound with backstop Johnny Tishia.

Forester Don Leaphart opened up the way to victory with a home run in the fourth with two men on bases. The Foresters led the game all the way with Bob Patton pitching and Kenneth Armstrong catching. Don Fox pitched for the Phi Sigs and Lou Stevens caught.

Gridiron Coaches Leave for 'Frisco

Doug Fessenden, director of athletics, and Eddie Chinske, assistant coach, left Saturday afternoon for San Francisco where they will attend a meeting of Pacific Coast conference directors and managers to discuss next season's football schedules.

Although this is not an official conference meeting, an effort will be made to straighten out the schedule problem before the official session at Sun valley in June.

Grizzlies Trounce Cat Netmen

Despite the absence of No. 2 man Wayne Cumming, Montana's Grizzly tennis aces swept the Bobcat netmen with two 7-0 victories in matches played here Friday and Saturday.

Montana's Gene Annas, although under doctor's orders to play only one match each day, gave his best performances of the season in the No. 2 singles against an old-time interscholastic opponent, Ronney Burnett.

Grizzly Captain Bev Garrett played his usual good game against Bobcat No. 1 man, Dick Chauner. In his Saturday's singles match, Garrett won by a default when Chauner suffered a foot injury.

Cumming, who was called away by the death of his father, is expected to return this week.

Friday's results:

Singles—Garrett defeated Chauner, 6-2, 6-3; Gene Annas defeated Burnett, 6-3, 10-8; Bill Jardine won from Dave Bossler, 6-1, 6-4; Sam Annas defeated Al Morrison, 6-2, 6-2; Paul Clapp won from Don Peyton, 6-0, 6-1.

Doubles—Garrett and Jardine defeated Chauner and Bossler, 6-1, 6-3; Ost and Annas won from Morrison and Burnett, 6-1, 6-3.

Saturday's results:

Singles—Garrett over Chauner, 6-4, 1-0 (default); G. Annas over Burnett, 6-1, 6-1; Jardine over Bossler, 2-6, 6-2, 6-2; Clapp over Morrison, 6-3, 6-0; Ost over Peyton, 6-1, 6-1.

Doubles—Garrett and Jardine defeated Burnett and Bossler, 6-0, 10-12, 6-3; Ost and S. Annas defeated Morrison and Peyton, 6-1, 6-0.

This week the Grizzlies take to the road, playing Farragut Tech in Idaho on Thursday, Whitworth at Spokane on Friday, and Idaho at Moscow on Saturday.

Yovetich, Crosby Break Three University Records As WSC Wins Dual Meet

BY BILL COONEY

Three university records were broken by Montana tracksters, but the Washington State Cougars monopolized the distance runs to win the dual meet, 77 to 54, Saturday.

NEW RECORDS

220-Yard Low Hurdles	24.2 —Yovetich
Shot Put	46'2" —Crosby
120-Yard High Hurdles	14.6 —Yovetich

A large crowd was on hand to see Captain Dan Yovetich smash the 120-yard high hurdle and 220-yard low hurdle records. The tall trackster breezed through the high hurdles in a speedy 14.6 and his 24.2 in the low hurdles topped his previous mark. Warren Crosby hurled the shot 46' 2 1/4", which is two inches over his old record. Many other outstanding marks were accomplished in the meet, as the two teams battled for the lead. The Grizzlies held a slight margin before the distance runs took place, but the Cougars garnered 28 points to the Grizzlies' 8 in these events.

The most exciting race of the day was the 440-yard dash. Domke passed two Cougar runners in the last 10 yards to gain a Grizzly win, despite the crowding attempts of the Washington State men.

The Grizzly thinclads took first in the two hurdles races, shot put, discus, 440-yard dash, and broad jump, but the Cougar squad was more balanced and that was the difference in the meet.

Yovetich was highscorer with 12 points and Joe Nebolon of the Cougars followed with 11.

Results

Shot Put—Crosby, Montana; Mataya, Washington St.; Purdy, Montana. Distance—46' 2 1/4" (new record).

High Jump—Brouhard, Washington St.; Cope, Montana; Grow,

Montana. Height—6' 6 1/2". Pole Vault—Klenz, Washington St.; Mayes, Montana; Hagen, Washington St. Height—12' 9".

880-yard run—Parnell, Washington St.; Carpenter, Washington St.; Lehn, Washington St. Time—1:59.4.

120-yard High Hurdles—Yovetich, Montana; Rocheleau, Montana; Polesfoot, Washington St. Time—14.6 (new record).

440-yard dash—Domke, Montana; Christianson, Washington St.; Wheesohn, Washington St. Time—51.4.

100-yard dash—Nebolon, Washington St.; Keniston, Washington St.; Yovetich, Montana. Time—9.9.

220-yard dash—Nebolon, Washington St.; Keniston, Washington St.; Yovetich, Montana. Time—23 seconds.

1500-yard run—Paeth, Washington St.; Lawson, Washington St.; Lehn, Washington St. Time—4:30.

Discus Throw—Crosby, Montana; Doyle, Montana; Metzger, Washington St. Distance—143' 7 3/4".

Javelin Throw—Cooley, Washington St. (please see page four)

Coach to Speak At SOS Thursday

Coach Eddie Chinske will review the baseball team's prospects for the double-header next week end at spring quarter's first SOS Thursday night at 7:30, according to Tradition's board Chairman, Chipppo Golder, Missoula.

If MSU student elections have not been completed by Thursday the remaining candidates will be introduced.

Golder said that Tradition's board has purchased two five-year traveling cups to award the men's and women's living groups having the best lawn decorations during Interscholastic Track meet May 15-17.

MSU Golfers Lose Two Tournaments

The Montana State University golf team, handicapped by lack of experience in tournament play and only three days practice, were defeated in two week-end tournaments by Washington State college at Pullman and University of Idaho at Moscow last Friday and Saturday.

The scores of 21½ to 5½ at Pullman and 20½ to 6½ at Moscow in best ball and individual match play give little indication of the many close matches and individual outstanding performances by members of the Grizzly team.

Dave Larson, Missoula, playing in the No. 3 position for Montana, showed promise in decisively defeating Washington's Fay in a singles match, 3 and 0. He shot a 75 on a 72 par course. George Sarsfield, Butte, team captain, and Don Rice, Santa Barbara, lost to Pozzi and Durkin in the Pullman doubles match. Pozzi also defeated Sarsfield in the singles match, shooting 69 to Sarsfield's 73.

Bob Kenyon, Miles City, and Larson were three up with four holes to go in their doubles match but were edged out by the Washington team.

In the Saturday matches at Moscow, Sarsfield defeated John Morley, runner-up in the 1946 Idaho state championship matches, 2½ to 1½. Sarsfield shot a par 72. Rice and Sarsfield tied Morley and Rodwell of Idaho at 1.5 in a doubles match and Larson and Bob Boyd, Lewistown, tied Idaho's Morley and Rodwell with a similar score in the doubles. Kenyon and Hu Williamson, Missoula, lost to Keenan and Cushman of Idaho ½ to 2½.

"Chinese Question Democracy," Oakes

tering spot for fascism, questioned Miss Oakes.

In closing, Miss Oakes quoted from a speech given by Adolph Hitler in 1938 which may be closer to the truth than many Americans like to admit.

"A defeated nation rather than a victorious one can be better trained for future victories. I do not know whether I will win the present conflict or not, but if not my government can go underground and when democratic nations have failed to solve the post-war problems, we can break loose and take over."

Earl Dahlstrom, Missoula Baritone, To Give Recital

Opening the 1947 National and International Music week in Missoula, May 4-10, baritone Earl Dahlstrom, Missoula, will present his senior recital in the Student Union auditorium May 4, at 8:15 p.m.

A native Missoulian, Dahlstrom is well-known to Missoula audiences for his numerous appearances in local recitals and concerts.

Dahlstrom, a pupil of John Lester, voice instructor, will be graduated from the school of music in June. His recital, the second and last senior recital of the year, partially completes requirements for a Bachelor of Music degree.

Admission to the recital is free. Dahlstrom will be accompanied at the piano by piano instructor Rudolph Wendt.

Physics Club Discusses Neutron

Charles Chapman, Missoula, will speak on the discovery of the neutron at the Physics club meeting today.

Dr. C. R. Jeppesen, professor of physics, said the club will meet at 4:30 p.m. in Craig 3. The discussion will deal with the observations that first led to the discovery of the neutron, the evidences that it was different from any previously known particle, and the final discoveries that led to the determination of its properties, added Dr. Jeppesen.
